

Research Assistant Position

Ellen Bialystok
Principal Investigator

The research in this lab examines the effect of bilingualism across the lifespan using behavioural and neuroimaging techniques. The lab has a 64-channel BioSemi ERP system on site and access to functional MRI.

Candidates must have:

- B.A. in psychology or related field
- Strong computer skills
- ERP experience and/or neuroimaging analysis an asset
- Strong interpersonal skills and the ability to work independently and with others
- Familiarity with SPSS or SAS and programming experience with E-prime highly desirable

Responsibilities include:

- Assisting in the design of experiments
- Collecting data
- Organizing and managing data
- Conducting statistical analyses

Position to begin immediately and will be posted until filled.

Interested applicants should forward a CV, statement of interest, and 2 letters of reference to:

Dr. Ellen Bialystok
Distinguished Research Professor
Department of Psychology
York University
4700 Keele Street
Toronto, Ontario
Canada M3J 1P3
(416) 736-2100 Ext 66109
ellenb@yorku.ca

Lifespan Cognition and Development Lab
Department of Psychology
York University
<http://lcad.lab.yorku.ca>